AYER'S The only SARSAPARILLA Admitted at the WORLD'S FAIR CHICAGO 1893

Why Was It

that Ayer's Sarsaparilla, out of the great number of similar preparations manufactured throughout the world, was the only medicine of the kind admitted at the World's Fair, Chicago? And why was it that, in spite of the united efforts of the manufacturers of other preparations, the decision of the World's Fair Directors was not reversed?

BECAUSE

According to RULE 15—"Articles that are in any way dangerous or offensive, also patent medicines, nostrums, and empirical preparations, whose ingredients are concealed, will not be admitted to the Exposition," and, therefore—

Because Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine, not a nostrum, and not a secret preparation.

Because its proprietors had nothing to conceal when questioned as to the formula from which it is compounded.

Because it is all that it is claimed to be—a Compound Concentrated Extract of Sarsaparilla, and in every sense, worthy the indorsement of this most important committee, called together for passing upon the manufactured products of the entire world.

THE LOVERS.

They sat upon the cliff that led my way.
I saw them from afar, as hand in hand,
In still content, with not a word to say,
They watched the blue sea and the smiling land.

I neared the place where they had sat them down.
She rose and gently brushed the spangled grass
With the soft touch of her light summer-gown.
Why could she not have staid and let me pass?

Sweet heart of maidenhood, that could not bear
To have a stranger look upon its bliss!
The youth went with her, but he did not care
If all the world beheld his happiness.
—Martha Perry Lowe in Boston Transcript.

A FALSE PROPHECY.

Awakening from a state of lethargy, Comte Raymond de Villemere beheld his doctor gazing on him sadly.

"Saved once more!" breathed the comte, and he smiled as he stretched out his arms.

"My poor friend," sighed the doctor. The sick man stared aghast.

"Pull yourself together," he continued. "You are a man who can stand the truth."

"What do you mean?"

"Your symptoms are those of the nona."

"Of what?"

"A curious plague. When the state of lethargy is over, the patient has three lucid hours, at the end of which he dies suddenly."

"Whew!"

"Now, look here, keep your spirits up, like the plucky fellow you are! After all is said and done life is not worth living for. Goodly—goodly, my poor friend—goodby."

Ten minutes later the comte had risen. Clad in his flannel smoking jacket, he was putting the last touches to his toilet. The doctor had withdrawn that his friend might have time to settle his worldly affairs.

When he had done brushing his mustache and smoothing his finger nails, Raymond chose one of his driest cigars and lit it, while casting a sorrowful look at the others, these which he was not to smoke. Then he threw himself on his divan and began to reflect.

However brave he might be, however fearless of death, Comte de Villemere soon came to the conclusion that his case was a peculiarly aggravating one.

The day before, so soon as he was taken with fever—he had made up his mind to prepare for the worst—he had sent for his lawyer, and for a priest, and destroyed all his letters. Then he had laid down his giddy head and fallen asleep with the conviction that he would not awake again before doomsday.

But now he was like a condemned man, who, after having made sure of a reprieve, found himself suddenly on the way to the scaffold.

Outside the cheery atmosphere of a bright June day the Champs Elysees were alive with a continuing stream of smart carriages. Everything spoke of happiness and health. He himself had never felt so fit, and he was asked to believe that tomorrow there would be nothing left of all this—so far as he was concerned—but a mournful crowd of friends, a trip in a slow jolting hearse and the mumbling of a priest before an open grave.

Tomorrow the joys and friendly ties of his whole life would be gone forever.

While he was finishing his cigar, reclining listlessly on the cushions of his divan, Raymond saw all his life flit past him as in a dream. Nearly forgotten episodes of his childhood cropped up as if they were quite recent. Then in rapid succession his mind dwelt on the many times he had fallen in love between 15 and 25 until he came to the first month of his married life.

How full of unmitigated joy those days had been! Raymond remembered the minutest events of his honeymoon or moons spent in fun and frolic, with pleasant excursions, verging on bachelor's dissipation and freaks which made lively gossip for fashionable folk. Delighted beyond measure by the admiration which his wife excited wherever he took her, he was more madly in love after his marriage than before. He would have been jealous if the mere possibility of such a thing could have been seriously entertained by either of them. And all this passionate love had been brought to an end by a scandalous separation owing to a blunder on his part and a rash escapade of the little comtesse.

By mutual consent they had separated. Yet, strange to say, their love for each other had continued. So far as the world was concerned, their relations were restricted to icy bows whenever they met on the boulevards, but their professed indifference for each other scarcely deceived their common friends.

The idea of dying without having seen once more the woman he loved above all others appeared preposterous to the comte. Studied obstinacy and stern resolve seemed to be altogether out of place when brought face to face with everlasting separation.

What risk did he run now in attempting a reconciliation even if it were not to succeed?

Raymond sprang to his feet, and seating himself before his writing desk scribbled hurriedly a short telegram and sent it off by his valet.

He looked at his watch. He had two hours more to live. The comtesse would have time to come.

Would she come? Would she be touched by a note containing a dying man's farewell? Or, in the relentless dignity of offended woman, would she refuse to forgive even under these solemn circumstances?

The anguish of uncertainty, added to the moral torture, made Raymond wince despite all his nerve and resolution to take his inevitable fate coolly. With something very like terror he eyed the fleeting minutes which separated him from eternity.

Another hour flew away while he was getting ready to die, stopping now and then to muse with melancholy on his past life. He wrote to his mother a very long letter, full of reminiscences of his early life, and as he did so tears came to his eyes.

Suddenly Raymond started at the sound of the electric bell. After a few seconds of wild expectation the door was opened and the servant ushered in—

"Mme. la Comtesse de Villemere!"

He rose from his seat very pale.

"Odette!" he exclaimed.

But the young woman remained standing on the threshold, her features contracted with anger.

"This is a most shameless trick, sir."

"A trick! What do you mean?"

"You wrote me word that you are dying, and I find you up and well, writing your letters. Goodby, sir."

"Odette! Do let me explain. One word only." And as she was leaving the comte snatched up from his desk the letter he was writing to his mother and held it out to her. "Read this before leaving," he gasped.

She took the letter, glanced at the first few lines and then fell on Raymond's neck, sobbing.

"Poor boy! It was the truth."

For a few minutes they remained clasped in each other's arms, full of passion and pain, giving mute expression to the memory of the happy months they had spent together and to remorse for the year of happiness they had lost by their separation.

They sat down close to one another, hand in hand, completely overcome by their feelings.

At last the comte bethought himself of his forefathers, one of whom had climbed the steps of the scaffold in 1793 whistling a tune from the "Indes Galanter."

"Well, never mind," said he, with a smile. "I suppose I ought not to complain. I am dying of a complaint which will be fashionable tomorrow."

But Odette looked at him reproachfully, and he did not continue. Women have no taste for irony.

They chatted about old times, at first almost in a whisper, as if they were in a room where death had stricken down a fellow creature. Then by degrees the remembrance of better days brought to mind a little incident which made their lips smile, while their eyes caught sight on the wall of some object recalling particulars of the life they had led formerly, such as the pictures of a chase, which evoked the sounds of the huntsman's horn as it rent in glowing gladness the November mist, and they dwelt with pleasure on the day when they had cantered side by side, rustling the brown leaves which covered the forest path.

Miniature fans, dusty accessories of charming cotillons, reminded them of a German waltz which they had danced before their marriage and how they had flirted the same evening under the palm trees of the hothouse.

They lived over again their rides in the Bois de Boulogne under the green, shady boughs when they were like two boys out for a spree, breakfasting at the Pavilion Chinois and coming back through the Champs Elysees to take their part in the exuberant life of the gay city. They would part for a few hours yearning to meet again—after being bored at the club and at 5 o'clock tea—in their box at the opera or in the tete-a-tete of their home.

Raymond and Odette were so absorbed by these old souvenirs that they became oblivious of time and of the terrible circumstance which had brought them together again.

The bell rang. They awoke to painful reality and exchanged a horrible look of anguish.

"Dr. Darlois!" announced the valet.

"Why, you do not mean to say you are out of bed?" said the medical man, with an amazed countenance. "I was coming to"—

"You were coming?"

"Well, I don't see why I should not tell the truth now that, thank God, I was mistaken. I was coming to make quite sure you were dead."

"Much obliged," smiled the comte.

"Then he is out of danger?" inquired Odette anxiously.

"There is no question about it. But it is certainly very odd, for the Echo des Cliniques published yesterday an exhaustive description of the nona. Nevertheless pray be assured that I am very happy"—

Unquestionably the doctor was very happy. At the same time if he had told the whole truth he would have admitted that he was rather vexed at having been such a bad prophet.

"Odette," suggested Raymond in a whisper, "do not you think you might ask him to dinner with us in the evening?"—From the French in Strand Magazine.

Cool.

A great deal of public mirth and occasional reprobation has followed Mme. Patti in her capacity of business woman. The coolness with which she has always demanded the largest possible price has become as well known as her lovely voice. Moreover, a retort by her has become historic.

When she was told that even the president of the United States did not receive nearly as much for his services as she demanded for hers, she answered, "Very well, get the president of the United States to sing for you!"

Other musicians have shown a thrifty desire to feather their nests. When Paganini was asked, years ago, to play at Vauxhall Gardens, he inquired how many people the place would hold.

"How many?" said the manager. "That is almost impossible to say. It's a large open space."

"Well," said the violinist, "how many will the largest space contain when quite full?"

"Perhaps 20,000."

"Ah, 20,000 people! And you ask how much?"

"Four shillings each."

"Four shillings each! Twenty thousand four shillings make 80,000. Eighty thousand shillings, £4,000 pounds. Well, I will play at one concert for £3,000 pounds, and you may have the other thousand!"—Youth's Companion.

BEAT THE TRAIN DISPATCHER.

This Operator Used to Get Sleepy and Had the Locomotive Wake Him.

Operators who keep lonely vigil at night in little out of the way railway stations lead lives which are anything but enviable. The usual hours are from 7 p. m. until 7 a. m., and how those 12 weary hours drag only a man having had experience knows.

On most railroads a night man at way stations must report to the dispatcher's office by wire as often as once an hour in order that the dispatcher may know that sleep has not overcome the senses of the lonely "owl." Now this very necessary thing—sleep—is the most bitter enemy the "owl" has to contend with, but the manner in which he indulges it is sometimes amusing, to say the least.

All sorts of contrivances to serve as an "eye opener" are conceived by the knights of the key, but the ingeniousness of a man who a few years ago "held down" a night station on the Fitchburg road caps the climax.

From the time of his first taking the position he was the source of more annoyance to the dispatcher because of his little "naps" than all the other operators combined. So after having been "hauled over the coals" innumerable times and the promise that the next offense meant dismissal Mr. "Owl" began to think.

Taking a stout cord and fastening it to the outer rail of the track in front of his window, he ran it through a hole into the office. Then perching himself upon a table he tied the cord around his waist, closed his eyes and slept on "without a care for the morrow."

When the first train came bowling into the station, the cowcatcher of the engine came in contact with the cord attached to the rail, and Mr. "Owl" suddenly found himself lying on the floor wide awake.

By this method he was always on hand to report the arrival and departure of trains, and the dispatcher in Boston wondered how it was that Mr. "Owl" had become so prompt.—Telegraphers' Herald.

ART OF REMEMBERING.

All Sorts of Systems Have Been In Use From Time Immemorial.

The art of rendering artificial aid to the memory by associating in the mind things difficult to remember with those which are easy of recollection is said to have originated with the Egyptians. The first person to reduce it to a system was, according to Cicero, the poet Simonides, who lived 500 B. C. His plan is known as the topical or locality plan and was in substance as follows: Choose a large house, with a number of differently furnished apartments in it Impress upon the mind carefully all that is noticeable in the house, so that the mind can readily go over the parts. Then place a series of ideas in the house—the first in the hall, the next in the sitting room, and so on with the rest. Now, when one wishes to recall these ideas in their proper succession, commence going through the house, and the idea placed in each department will be found to readily recur to the mind in connection with it.

It is related that the mnemonic plan was first suggested to the poet by a tragic occurrence. Having been called from a banquet just before the roof of the house fell and crushed all the rest of the company, he found on returning that the bodies were so mutilated that no individual could be recognized, but by remembering the places which they had severally occupied at the table he was able to identify them. He was thus led to notice that the order of places may by association suggest the order of things.—Philadelphia Press.

The Chinchilla.

The tiny chinchilla, not more than 12 inches long, with a plump little body on short, stout legs, thrives only in the tropics. New York's supply of chinchilla skins comes from Peru and Venezuela chiefly. The little beasts have to be killed with the utmost precaution not to injure their fur, that grows on a skin nearly as tender and soft as a web of silk. They are not common animals nor abundant in their South American haunts, so that a perfect chinchilla skin when it arrives, customs paid, in the port of New York, easily fetches $10 or $12 for its hand's breadth of fur. To keep in good condition the delicate pelt and the making up of small bits into the large barrel shaped muffs and circular cape collars worn this season easily make a chinchilla wrap more costly than ermine or sable. A perfect skin, not larger than a small pocket handkerchief, is a revelation in fur growth. The texture of every hair is finer than floss silk, the length of it nearly an inch and the coloring about that of the soft undyed marabout feathers.—New York Sun.

A Historic Highway.

Massachusetts avenue, from Dorchester to the battlefield of Concord, through Boston, Cambridge, Arlington and Lexington, is a magnificent drive on a pleasant day, with a moderately dry roadbed and the absence of flying dust. More points of historic interest are in view in this continuous avenue of 20 miles than in any similar excursion route in the country, not excepting St. George's avenue, the ante-Revolutionary military road that traverses New Jersey 100 miles between the cities of New York and Philadelphia, passing through Newark, Rahway and Trenton.—Boston Budget.

Herbivorous Animals.

Herbivorous animals do not eat all of nature's menu. The horse refuses the water hemlock that the goat eats with avidity, and, on the other hand, the goat refuses some plants that are eaten by the sheep. The tobacco plant is avoided by all save the goat, man and the tobacco worm. Some botanists think that no plant is absolutely poisonous, but only relatively so, being harmful to only certain animals.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, JANUARY 19, 1895.

H. H. GRANICE - - - - - - - - - - - EDITOR

SENATOR HOLLOWAY of this county has been made chairman of the Labor and Capital Committee of the Senate.

THE Philadelphia Times in speaking of the sweeping victory of the Republicans in the recent elections facetiously remarks: "The dreadful landslide did not quite extend to California. Out there it became just a Pacific slope."

THE CONGRESS has appropriated $500,000 for a Postoffice at San Francisco, $100,000 for the enforcement of the Chinese Exclusion Act and $100,000 for the enforcement of the Alien Contract Labor Law. Fifty thousand dollars have also been appropriated for improving the harbor of San Francisco.

LOUIS COHEN, a San Francisco "stuffer" in the recent election, has been convicted of perjury in Judge Wallace's Court in that city. In order to shield himself against the charge of false registration he swore that he resided at the Baldwin Hotel when in fact he resided elsewhere. He will take an appeal to the Supreme Court, but as Judge Wallace's decisions are seldom reversed by the higher tribunal Cohen's chances of serving several years in the State Prison are more than even.

THE new Board of Railroad Commissioners met in San Francisco on Monday last and elected M. H. LaRue Chairman. No Secretary was elected. LaRue voted for John Markley; Stanton for Samuel Newman and Clark for the incumbent, James Kelley. LaRue named among others for the position C. B. Wakefield of El Dorado; C. Pressley of Santa Rosa; R. Cravens of Sacramento; Mr. Knox of Napa and Mr. de Laguna as gentlemen who had been recommended to him for the Secretaryship.

ASSEMBLYMAN STALEY and Price of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Assembly Districts the other day voted with the majority against closing the "well" in the Capital building. When we explain that the "well" furnishes liquid refreshments on the sly to our statesmen the average reader will not be surprised that our most "potent, grave and reverend senors and our very approved and noble masters" of Senate and Assembly downed the bare mention of such a proposition. They like their "toddies" like other individuals.

THE State press have printed glowing headlines the past week saying "Gunst is Out." It looks to us as though Mose was very much in. Police Commissioners Tobin and Alvord have refused to recognize Stewart Menzies, Governor Budd's appointee. They say that Gunst is good enough for them, and the Governor is now threatening to turn all three out of office. Menzies will carry the case to the Supreme Court, which has already decided that a Police Commissioner cannot be removed by the Governor. It looks as though the people of San Francisco, who feel outraged at the appointment of Gunst, will have to swallow him anyhow.

OVER one hundred lives were lost and an entire fire company wiped out of existence by an explosion of dynamite in Butte, Montana, last Tuesday night. A fire broke out in the business part of the town and the firemen together with a large number of citizens responded to the alarm rung out by the fire bells. Ten minutes after the firemen arrived upon the scene a terrific explosion took place in the burning building, which was followed five minutes later by two other explosions. All but three of the firemen were blown to atoms. Over fifty citizens in the vicinity of the fire were also killed and a large number wounded. The dynamite was stored in the building contrary to law and no doubt the owners will be arrested and held for manslaughter.

If you want the very best of wine, liquors or cigars go to the Sonoma House, and you will be politely served by Mr. Chas. Stein *

A Dramatist's Rejoinder.

When Colman, the English dramatist, was examined before the committee of the house of commons which sat on the theatrical question, he was asked whether he expunged all oaths or profane swearing from the plays submitted to his revision. He answered:

"Invariably."

"Did you ever count the number of oaths in your own comedies of the 'Heir at Law' and 'John Bull?'"

"Never, but I dare say there are a great many."

"Which you disapprove of?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Do you not think it would have been better to have omitted them?"

"Much better. They disfigure the scenes in which they are introduced and injure the humor."

"Then," concluded the chairman, thinking to clinch the argument, "you are sorry now that you wrote either of those comedies?"

"Quite the contrary," rejoined the licenser. "I rejoice exceedingly to have made a good pudding, although I regret that any bad plums should have crept into it."—New York Advertiser.

Pens and Ink.

The late Dr. Holmes, like Goethe, says Mr. Smalley in the New York Tribune, "dwelt on the importance of stationery and of a good pen and good ink to the writer, especially the imaginative writer. Between him and the due expression of his thought in black and white there ought to be as few obstacles as possible, no friction that can be avoided. Many a fine thought he declared had perished ere it was fairly born, strangled in the birth by a hair on the nib of the pen or choked out of life by muddy ink. His paper was ruled and glazed; his ink a thin black, not blue black, as is much of the best writing fluid in this country. He had written I know not how many books with the same pen. And he looked at the pen as if it were a part of himself."

Justice Holt and His Wife.

The English Chief Justice Holt and his wife hated each other, and when she fell dangerously ill he was so delighted that he became disgracefully tipsy. But his wife was equal to the emergency and sent for the great Dr. Radcliffe, who hated Holt, and therefore out of spite, when the case was presented to him, came with great promptness and saved her life.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of bad colds. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. If freely used as soon as the cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it greatly lessons the severity of the attack and has often cured in a single day what would have been a severe cold. An Old Soldier's Recommendation.

In the late war I was a soldier in the First Maryland Volunteers, Company G. During my term of service I contracted chronic diarrhœa. Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief it would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow. I take pleasure in recommending this preparation to all of my old comrades, who, while giving their services to their country, contracted this dreadful disease as I did, from eating unwholesome and uncooked food. Yours truly, A. E. BENDING, Halsey, Oregon. For sale by all dealers.

The members of the Sonoma Turn Verein are making great preparations for their masquerade ball on the evening of February 22nd (Washington's Birthday.) The affair is in the hands of a committee composed of the following gentleman; Chas. Cheney, Jas. Small and C. Haderman. It is proposed to make this one of the most successful masquerades ever held in Sonoma.

The annual meeting of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railway Company was held last Tuesday in San Francisco. All the capital stock was represented. The following directors were elected without opposition: Arthur W. Foster, Sidney V. Smith, George A. Newhall, P. N. Lilienthal, Henry T. Scott and Russell J. Wilson. The only change in the Board of Directors was the election of Geo. A. Newhall in place of Alfred A. Seligman. Arthur W. Foster was re-elected President, P. N. Lilenthal Vice-President, Sydney V. Smith general counsel, and the Anglo-California Bank treasurer.

Dredging Resumed.

The dredger "Empire," belonging to the Pless Dredging and Reclamation Company, which has been building levees on the Sacramento River the past year, is now engaged in "digging mud" on the reclaimed lands south of town belonging to the Pacific Reclamation Company of which Senator John P. Jones is the principal stockholder. The dredger is in charge of Henry Bombaugh. The ten or fifteen miles of levee surrounding the Senator Jones ranch will be raised and widened several feet and a number of large flood gates will be put in to carry off the surface water which has accumulated on the tract owing to the phenomenal rainfall the past month. About 3,000 acres of the land is seeded to wheat and barley and a large yield is anticipated this year.

County Treasury Robbery.

A careful examination of ex-County Treasurer Stofen's books shows that the exact amount of money belonging to the county taken by the robber was $7,815.79. Besides this sum $600 belonging to ex-Treasurer Stofen was also taken, making $8,415.79 as the total amount of swag secured. So far no clew has been obtained which would lead to the discovery of the robber.

There is considerable discussion in regard to what the county will do in the matter of the loss. Some favor having a bill introduced in the Legislature to grant relief to ex-Treasurer Stofen, who, it is claimed, was not at fault in any way in the matter.

The Supervisors have not yet taken any action. It is believed that the loss will be promptly paid up by Mr. Stofen and his bondsmen. If it is not, a suit will be brought, as was done in the case of the robbery of the Healdsburg City Treasurer several months ago.

Installation.

District Deputy Sunkler of St. Helena installed the newly elected officers of Sonoma Lodge, No. 28, I. O. O. F., last Saturday evening. He was assisted by Jas. H. Albertson, Acting Grand Marshal; John Wagnon, Acting Grand Warden; J. M. Cheney, Acting Grand Secretary and R. B. Lyon, Acting Grand Treasurer. The following were installed: Thos. Erskine, N. G.; Fred. Batto, V. G.; John Reve, Secretary; E. J. Robin, Treasurer; John Johnson, I. G.; R. B. Lyon, Warden; J. M. Cheney, Conductor; John Wagnon, V. S. N. G.; J. S. Young. L. S. N. G.; Henry Claspquin, R. S. V. G.; Henry Castagnasso, L. S. V. G.

The Sonoma Odd Fellows Lodge is in a prosperous condition. It has a membership of over fifty, is entirely out of debt and owns a fine two-story building, the upper part of which is finely furnished and is used for lodge purposes by some half-dozen societies, while the lower part is rented to good paying tenants.

California Authors and the State University.

The important collections of the writings of California authors gathered by the San Francisco Womens' Literary Exhibit Committee for the Chicago Exposition has been presented to the library of the University at Berkeley. It is to be preserved, together with similar material already in the library, as a permanent exhibit of California literature. It will be the aim of the library to render the collection as complete as possible, and to this end the active co-operation of all California authors is earnestly solicited. Critics and reviewers into whose hands come such books and pamphlets, many of them privately printed or issued in small editions, can render valuable service to future students of our local literature by sending them to the University library for careful preservation.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER
MOST PERFECT MADE.
A pure Grape Cream of Tartar Powder. Free from Ammonia, Alum or any other adulterant.
40 YEARS THE STANDARD.

HOUSEKEEPERS who are wise will not be persuaded into the purchase of the unreliable baking powders which some dealers wish to sell for the sake of the additional profit derived therefrom. Crudely mixed from low-grade, impure ingredients, such powders cost but half as much to make as the highly refined, absolutely pure Royal Baking Powder, although retailed at the same price. They are unwholesome and lacking in leavening strength.

Royal Baking Powder gives the greatest value for its cost, and there is no other powder or preparation that will give such satisfaction, or make such pure, wholesome and delicious food, or which in practical use will be found so economical.

CUPID IN CHURCH CHOIRS.

Affinities Are Speedily Discovered There, and Matrimony Soon Results.

A man who sings tenor in a church on Michigan avenue said the other day he knew of at least a half dozen serious affairs of the heart in progress in as many choirs on the South Side.

"I believe," he added, "that if statistics were obtainable on the subject it would be found that of single people who join church choirs a larger proportion get married within a year than among an equal number of young people that might be selected anywhere else. A possible exception might be made of the operatic stage. Singing, even if it is about things celestial, sets the deepest of all earthly emotions going, and the hearts chord with each other just as voices do.

"If the singer doesn't discover an affinity in a fellow singer, it is pretty apt to be found in the congregation. If a woman has a sweet voice, a face to match and a figure to go with the other two attractions, she has the best possible opportunity for displaying them. The same principle applies to a handsome man.

"Sometimes there are sharp rivalries, of course, which result in musical duels between, say, the tenor and the basso, both of whom are smitten by the charms of some lady member of the choir. I don't know, however, that there has ever in real life come a tragedy out of such a set of conditions as we are told happened in the case of 'lovely Anna, the soprano,' who 'all the singers' hearts inspired.' The tenor, you know, went so high that he blew the top of his head off, and the basso sang so low he split the soles of both his feet. Anna mourned awhile for both these fellows—

Wind into the Organ bellows,"

EACH GIRL WORE COURT PLASTER.

And So the Youth Couldn't Tell Which Came Into His Room.

The young man who thinks he is going to come out ahead in any joke in which a girl of ordinary sharpness is involved is sure to find his mistake. It happened some time ago in a certain college that the dormitories of both the young lady and gentlemen students opened into the same hall.

One evening near midnight one of the girls, who had slipped out of her room to enjoy a secret chat with one of the other girls, was hurrying to her room, and in the dark mistook the room, entering the room of one of the boys by mistake. He was standing by the gas jet, having just turned out the light, and when she had found the match which she carried in her pocket and started to light the gas she stumbled against him. Of course she screamed and started for the door, but he was too quick for her, and holding her a moment actually bit her cheek in order that he might identify the young lady when next they met.

Of course her wrath knew no bounds, and when she finally reached her room she called an indignation meeting of the other girls and explained what the horrid fellow had presumed to do. She could never face him again and was not going to chapel in the morning. But then of course he would know who she was, and she appealed to the girls to help her out of the difficulty. They did.

The next morning when the girl students filed past the boys at devotional exercises in the chapel one wicked youth looked over the top of his testament only to see a procession of 12 girls, each having a long strip of black court plaster on her left cheek. He has never yet discovered which girl he bit.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

The Kangaroo at Bay.

When pursued, the kangaroo, if possible, directs his flight toward the river. If he reaches it, he enters, and, thanks to his great height, is able to go on foot to a depth where the dogs are obliged to swim. There he plants himself on his two hind legs and his tail, and, up to his shoulders in the water, he awaits the attack of the dogs. With his fore paws he seizes by the head the first dog that approaches him, and as he is more solidly balanced than his assailants he holds the dog's nose under water as long as he can. Unless a second dog speedily comes to the rescue the first one is sure to be drowned. If a companion arrives and by his attacks on the kangaroo manages to set the captive free, the half drowned brute is glad to regain the shore as quickly as possible. In this way a strong and courageous male kangaroo will hold his own against 20 or 30 dogs, drowning some and frightening others, and the hunter is obliged to intervene with a bullet.—Exchange.

Satisfaction.

Biquon, the Paris restaurateur, acquired a large fortune, and his wife carried on the business after his death. It is of this time that the story is told of a poor journalist who was seen in the restaurant eating a small plate of strawberries at a season when the fruit was so expensive as to be an extravagance even for the rich. An acquaintance saw the wretched penny a liner and smiled significantly. "Yes," said the journalist, "I know I shall have to pay 10 francs for these, but the sight of that woman at the counter, who is worth two millions, picking over strawberries for me, who haven't got 3 louis in the world, gives me such an amount of satisfaction that the berries are worth it."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Crystallized Grasses.

Grasses may be crystallized as follows: Place a saucepan partly filled with water on the stove, and in it dissolve enough alum to make it of sufficient density to bear an egg; let this boil. Take off the saucepan and lay your grasses (dried and tied in bunches to suit the fancy) in the water. When the water is perfectly cold, lift out the bouquets, and you will find them a mass of beautiful crystal.—Kansas City Star.

THE POOL TO NARCISSUS.

You never loved me, but you saw in me
Reflected all the flowers your own soul bore.
You saw your eyes in mine, and so you swore
That only eyes like those your stars should be.

You leaned your flower soft face toward my face.
I waited, heartsick, for the crowning hour.
You looked and longed and loved—not me, fair flower—
You loved the mirror of your own great grace.

You leaned down with the lily that you wore.
Had I but leaped to meet your kiss divine
You and your flower of love had now been mine,
Drowned in my love, to waken nevermore.

But as it is—ah, love, you know the rest!
Robbed of your image, how the pool seemed base!
You will find many a mirror for your face,
But no more flowers will lean across my breast!
—Athenæum.

GENERAL MILES' BOYHOOD.

Loved Fishing and Was the Leader of an "Indian" Band.

When General Miles was a boy, he had few companions near his home, for it was a farming region and sparsely settled. His only brother, 12 years older than himself, left home early, and his two sisters being much older Nelson was left much to himself.

On Saturdays and other holidays the schoolboys frequently met by appointment at the home of one of their number. They formed themselves into bands and clans and drilled or carried on miniature warfare. They re-enacted scenes of the Indian and Revolutionary wars. The leaders drew lots to settle who should be "the British," "the Injins" or "the 'Mericans."

Nelson Miles frequently led one band. They made expeditions through the open wooded country. Sometimes imagining themselves roving Indians, they built wigwams, and sometimes as pioneer settlers they built log huts. They laid ambuscades, attacked strongholds, captured parties and did many other adventurous things. Their costumes were gathered from the farmhouse garrets and consisted of colonial, continental, 1812 and train band uniforms—formerly common in old New England families—and imitations of the dress of the Narragansett and Iroquois Indians. The weapons were old flint lock muskets, shotguns, rusty swords, tomahawks and bows and arrows.

It is easy to infer that the Miles boy had military aspirations, and that the promise of an appointment to West Point when he should be of the required age would have been hailed by him with delight. But a farmer's boy without relatives or friends with political influence had no hope of such an appointment in those days, when cadetships went by favor and not by competitive examination.—New York Press.

The Judge and the Cyclist.

A jocular cyclist, well known in the Copenhagen sporting world, had to answer a summons for riding on the footpath leading to Lyngby church. The judge thundered out the words, "You have been cycling on the Lyngby church footpath?"

The cyclist nodded assent.

"You will have to pay a fine of 4 kroner."

The accused took four coins out of his pocket and laid them on the bar. "But tell me, your worship, have Prince Waldemar and Princess Marie permission to cycle on the path in question?"

The judge rubbed his nose.

"Um! No, certainly not. Is this your first offense?"

"Yes, your worship, and my last," answered the culprit.

"Well, then, I will let you off with a caution this time."

Our cyclist gathered up his money, made his bow and walked off. But when he had got to the door the judge called out to him:

"Hello, you there, did you actually see Prince Waldemar and Princess Marie riding on that path?"

"I? No, your worship," replied the cyclist, with a twinkle in his eye, and was gone.—Handelstidningen.

The Bicycle.

If a prophetic genius of 30 years ago had ventured the opinion that this generation would enjoy the use of a machine which man's own physical strength could drive 30 miles an hour or faster even, his incredulous hearer would have been likely to whisper "steam." Yet we have today such a machine, not only established in the favor of thousands of young men given naturally to activity, but rapidly capturing the respect and the fancy of people of all sexes, sizes and pursuits, to whom the hitherto known forms of exercise have been difficult or impossible. The bicycle has created a sentiment for itself and for the outdoor customs it leads to which amount to a genuine cult. The generic name of "wheelman" describes a wheelman indeed in spirit and in habit both.—New York Sun.

The Battle of a Week.

The battle of a Week was the great conflict at Tours, in which Charles Martel overthrew the Saracens, A. D. 732. The members of the Saracen army are variously estimated at from 400,000 to 700,000, and the monkish historians say that 375,000 were killed on the field. It is suspected that these figures are a gross exaggeration, but it is certain that few battles of history have been either so bloody or so decisive.

A Cruel Command.

The marquis was extremely wroth with his valet on account of one of his usual stupid tricks. Calling out to him, he said: "Giovanni! Come and help me on with my topboots. I want to kick you."—Cronaca.

In the sugar corn the conversion of sugar into starch is arrested at a particular point in the growth, the grain does not fill out, and is consequently shriveled.

The bones of very aged persons are said to have a greater proportion of lime than those of young people.

A GRAND OFFER!
FREE MME. A. RUPPERT'S FACE BLEACH

MME. A. RUPPERT says: "I appreciate the fact that there are many thousands of ladies in the United States that would like to try my World-Renowned FACE BLEACH: but have been kept from doing so on account of price, which is $2.00 per bottle or 3 bottles taken together, $5.00. In order that all of these may have an opportunity, I will give to every caller, absolutely free, a sample bottle, and in order to supply those out of city, or in any part of the world, I will send it safely packed in plain wrapper all charges prepaid, for 25 cents, silver or stamp."

In every case of freckles, pimples, moth, sallowness, blackheads, acne, eczema, oiliness, roughness, or any discoloration or disease of the skin, and wrinkles (not caused by facial expression) FACE BLEACH removes absolutely. It does not cover up, as cosmetics do, but is a cure. Address
